'FRAME' OF LEADER IS SUSPECTED

Mideast Review Voted

WASHINGTON (UP)—Two Senate committees voted 30-0 today for a sweeping review of U. S. Middle East policy over the last 10 years.

The unanimous vote came on a resolution by Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark).

The State Department revealed that it would "welcome" such a study if it does not "breach the confidence of other friendly governments."

Republican congressional leaders also said President Eisenhower has agreed to such a review.

Relay President's Approval

The congressional leaders relayed the President's approval after a White House conference this morning.

The department's position was outlined in a letter from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to Chairman Theodore Francis Green (D-RI) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It was not disclosed until after the vote when Green read the letter.

The vote came at a meeting of the combined armed services and foreign relations committees, which are considering Mr. Eisenhower's proposed Middle East doctrine to provide economic aid and, if necessary, military force to the Middle East.

Meantime, the House prepared to begin actual floor debate on the doctrine resolution.

The two Senate committees include a combined total of 16 Democrats and 14 Republicans.

Would Expedite Action

Dulles wrote Green that "I understand that the request (for a documented chronological report on Middle East developments) will be so couched that compliance therewith would not delay but presumably expedite action on the pending joint resolution to halt Communist aggression in the Middle East. . .and that it will not seek to breach the confidence of other friendly governments."

Fulbright's proposal states that the Middle East study will not begin until after the Senate acts on the resolution. It requests the department to furnish in chronological form all documents which are "significantly" connected with developments in Middle East policy.

The two Senate committees began questioning Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, behind closed doors after the vote.

Republicans on the committees had successfully requested the postponement until today to give them time to consult with Dulles and obtain his views on the proposed foreign policy inquiry.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland announced that Mr. Eisenhower did not object to the study.

National Guard Is Accused by Wilson Of 'Draft Dodging'

WASHINGTON (UP) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, after a conference with President Eisenhower, today stuck to his charge that some young men used the National Guard as a "draft dodging business" during the Korean War.

Wilson, standing in the rain outside the President's office building, told reporters firmly that he did not discuss with Mr. Eisenhower his controversial remarks before the House Armed Services Committee Monday. Wilson had told the committee that the Guard was a "sort of scandal" during the Korean War; "a draft dodging business."

"Perhaps it is a little tough language but that is exactly what it amounted to," Wilson said today.

Wilson's remarks Monday brought angry reaction from some members of Congress and the rejoinder from Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, National Guard Association president, that Wilson's charge was "a lie."

But Wilson refused today to apologize for his remarks.

"I know of no reason why I should," he told reporters.

Wilson at first declined to discuss his controversial remarks. Then reporters asked what he discussed with the President.

Looking up at the White House, Wilson said, "This is not my dung hill—anything that is to be announced over here, somebody else ought to announce."

Sooner or Later

Wilson was asked if he had fixed a date for his departure from the cabinet.

He said no, but he expected to leave "sooner or later."

Then the chunky, gray haired secretary began to talk about his feelings toward the National Guard.

"If anyone thinks I am against the National Guard, of course they are wrong," he said. "I'm trying to get the National Guard efficient and trained."

Both senators and representa-

Retiring members of the executive committee are Anthony Todaro, Allen Cowan, Chester Lear and Carl Ewing. A change in the by-laws permits an additional member to be elected this year, making a total of nine on the committee.

Boy Runs into Car; Is Hurt

Donald Flower, 6½ - year - old Belle Vernon R. D. boy, is in Monongahela Memorial Hospital today suffering from a fractured right leg received yesterday when he ran into a stopped car on legislative Route 64118, about two miles east of Webster.

According to police, the driver of the car, Ralph Lorenzo, 46, of Webster, was traveling towards Webster when he saw the boy running on the road. Lorenzo, police said, pulled his car off the road and stopped. The boy however, was unable to stop and ran into the rear bumper of the vehicle.

The boy is in "good" condition, according too the hospital.

News Blackout Over Rehoboth Church Dispute

A news blackout has been lowered over the Rehoboth Church dispute.

Members of a Commission, appointed by the Redstone Presbytery to "study the Rehoboth dispute without prejudice", met last night in Belle Vernon.

But the Rev. D. Lester Say, of East McKeesport, chairman, asked The Independent this morning to refrain from publishing news stories about the dispute until a decision is reached.

The investigation was ordered at the request of a group of Rehoboth members said to be opposed to the Rev. J. Nelson Jackaway, pastor of the church for the past eight years. None of the group has been publicly identified.

Mr. Say refused to say what developed at last night's meeting except that the investigation would probably be lengthy and that no immediate decision was forthcoming.

He said the Commission's secretary, the Rev. Joseph E. Heckel, of Irwin, had been instructed to send a request to all newspapers to refrain from printing news news about the dissension.

Four Monessen Men Face Induction

Four Monessen men will exchange their civilian clothes for Army uniforms on Feb. 12, it was announced today by Local Draft Board 171.

Scheduled for induction on that date are Francis Elden Kent, Andrew John Rendos, Walter Paul Varega and John Sedok.

It was also announced that another Monessen man, Salvatore Joseph Iacovangelo, has volunteered for induction and will leave for service with the above group.

Freeing Of Bridge In May

Freeing of the Charleroi-Monessen Bridge is expected about May 31, it was announced today by the state Treasury Department.

The department said that the 10 state-owned toll bridges are producing enough revenue to free them by that time.

The department said that only $3,500,000 remained to be paid off as of Dec. 31 of the original $8,500,000 in bonds sold in 1949 to buy the bridges from private owners.

Since the toll bridge fund has $3,153,000 in securities and cash which can be used to retire the bonds, the department said it leaves less than $400,000 in income needed to pay off the indebtedness.

Ahead of Schedule

Net income from the collections has been running at about $80,000 per month and at that rate should yeild the necessary amount by May 31.

Redemption of the bonds this summer would mean freeing the bridges four years ahead of schedule.

The bridges involved, in addition to the Charleroi - Monessen include:

Clark's Ferry, Duncannon; Market street, Harrisburg; Eighth street, Allentown; Ellwood City, Koppel; Sanbury; Minsi Trail, Bethlehem; New Street, Bethlehem; Point Marion and the Wallnut street bridge in Harrisburg.

The tolls received from travel over the Charleroi - Monessen bridge has more than accounted for the purchase price, but state policy has ruled that none of the 10 bridges can be freed until all are paid off.

Combustion to Expand; Needs Many Draftsmen

The mechanical drafting department of the Combustion Engineering Inc. plant in Monongahela will be expanded soon, according to an announcement today by A. R. McLain, general manager.

McLain said present plans call for a buildup in personnel to at least 100 designers and draftsmen.

"This will be a golden opportunity for experienced men in the immediate locality to have desirable and interesting work in Monongahela," McLain said.

Qualified mechanical drafting checkers, layout draftsmen and detailers will be needed to fill the expanded division.

According to McLain, the work will involve all pressure parts required for large steam generating units, including drums, headers, tubing, etc. Men who have a background and are experienced in general boiler work are preferred, McLain said, but anyone having experience in mechanical drafting could qualify.

McLain said that Combustion is expanding its Monongahela facilities "not only in accordance with the demands of present business, but in anticipation of a considerable increase in the next 10 years."

Car Hits Truck Ashing Streets

Slight damage resulted when a car struck a parked truck belonging to the Monessen Streets Department late yesterday morning, police reported today.

Reports said a car operated by Don Zenobi, of 204 Aliquippa avenue, skidded down ice-slick Reed avenue near Ninth street and struck the truck carrying cinders for the icy streets.

Leon Johnson, of 123 Ninth street, was the driver of the truck.

Thursday Deadline For Alien Reports

Thursday is the deadline for aliens to file 1957 address report forms as required by the 1952 Immigration and Nationality Act.

The law requires all aliens to file address report forms during January of each year. Failure to comply can mean a fine, jail sentence, and deportation for a willful violation.

The forms can be obtained at any post office.

NIXON BUYS A BIGGER HOUSE — Former home (upper) of Homer Cummings, former U. S. attorney general, is being purchased by Vice President Richard Nixon in the Wesley Heights section of Washington. It has six bedrooms, is in the $80,000 class. The Nixons now live in a three-bedroom house (lower) in the $40,000 class.

Legislation Urged to Outlaw Wire-tapping

HARRISBURG (UP) — Legislation to outlaw wire-tapping has been proposed by Democrats in both houses of the General Assembly.

The House measure, introduced by Rep. Thomas J. McCormack (Phiadelphia) would prohibit the interception of telephone or telegraph communications without knowledge of at least one of the parties of the conversation, under penalty of a $5,000 fine and imprisonment up to one year.

The Senate bill would completely prohibit the use of wire-tapping devices without the knowledge of the parties of the communication and would prohibit the use of evidence obtained by interception of telephone communications in court. However, McCormack's bill would permit the issuance of court warrants to allow law enforcement agencies to tap wires under certain conditions.

Information obtained by law enforcement agencies by wire-tapping would be turned over to the judge issuing the warrant, who would order the destruction of the information if it did not reveal evidence of crime.

Suggested by Gov. George M. Leader in his message to the Assembly at the opening of the session, the legislation is supported by the American Civil Liberties Union, the Philadelphia Bar Association and other legal groups.

Deputy Attorney General Frank P. Lawley said there is apparently no law on the books to prevent wire tapping in the state. He cited a recent opinion of Superior Court Judge Robert E. Woodside in a Lancaster County case, in which the jurist said "Pennsylvania has never made it a crime for public officers to tap a telephone wire to obtain evidence."

Two Sentenced For Burglaries

GREENSBURG, Pa. (UP)—Two Monongahela Valley men who admitted burglarizing a Rostraver Twp. packing house were given lengthy suspended sentences today and ordered to make $700 restitution.

Judge Edward G. Bauer placed Herbert F. Wilson, 28, Donora, who admitted looting the Weiss Packing Co. three times, under a 30-year suspended sentence.

Jonas T. Caton, 31, Belle Vernon RD 3, who was involved in one of the burglaries, was given a 20-year suspended sentence. The two men admitted stealing hams, bacon, fresh meat and live chickens.

The board of directors of Pittsburgh Steel Co. today declared a dividend on the common stock of 25 cents in cash and one per cent in stock.

The board also authorized the regular dividends of $1.375 per share on the prior preferred stock, $1.25 per share on the Class A 5 first series, 5 ½ per percent, and per cent preferred stock.

All dividends are payable March 1, 1957, to all shareholders of record on Feb. 8, 1957.

Linde Strike Cuts Production At Local Plant

The Monessen plant of Pittsburgh Steel Co. is losing about three to five per cent of ingot production daily by curtailment of supply of liquid oxygen, a spokesman said today.

The supply of oxygen used to speed up melting of steel in open hearth furnaces has been slowed down by the four-day strike of 130 employes at the Kittanning and Essington plants of Linde Air Products Division, of Union Carbide and Carbon Co.

The spokesman said Pittsburgh Steel is getting about 25 per cent of its oxygen needs from Linde plants not involved int he dispute.

He said it is impossible to predict the effects of the strike if it continues.

The strikers are seeking a 20-cent-an-hour pay hike.

Listed as incorporators are Walter Wozniak, John Kasuda, Allen Smith, Rudolph Gohosky, John J. Wozniak and Donald Stephens all of Fayette City R. D. 1.

The association plans to collect from all members an initiation fee of $50 and yearly dues of $24.

Political Foes Hint Misconduct In His Office

HARRISBURG (UP) — The state Justice Department today sought to determine whether a second attempt to link a close member of Gov. George M. Leader's official family with official misconduct might not be an attempt to "frame" the governor politically.

Attorney General Thomas D. McBride said a quick but thorough investigation disclosed "not the slightest foundation" for a question raised by former House Speaker Hiram G. Andrews on the House floor that Leader's personal secretary, David V. Randall, Lykens, might be involved in a "conflict of interests" in a Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission cindering contract.

Andrews told a hushed House Monday there were "current rumors, sidebar gossip and allegation" to the effect that Randall's wife was the president of a firm which had obtained a $19,000 contract last fall to supply the Turnpike Commission with 10,000 tons of cinders.

Andrews identified the firm as the S & Y Trucking Co, operated by William R. Yeagley, of Jonestown RD 2. He said reports were that a member of the Turnpike Commission said he hoped "for the governor's sake" that the contract was not awarded to the firm.

Andrews said it "had been my conviction that the governor's secretary was interested in this company by reason of various ties concerned with the official manning of the company."

But he also posed the possibility of a "frame"—of someone "trying to victimize the administration by pretending that a certain party was president of the company when that is not the case."

McBride said he immediately began an investigation of the rumors after advising Andrews in "wisdom and decency" to withhold his remarks from the House floor until they could be investigated.

He announced within an hour that his initial efforts indicated there was no truth to the reports.

Inquiry Continues

"The investigation will continue," McBride said, "but every single thing I have heard leads me inevitably to the conclusion that there is a vicious, false attack on an innocent man and woman. It is probably an attack on good government itself. We will, of course, look into the aspects of a 'frame'."

McBride said his inquiries disclosed this version of the "cinder" story:

Yeagley was a trucker with a single truck. He had not been in business for some time because of illness. Yeagley had an agreement with Earle Nelson, of Tower City. Nelson had a cinder bank ard made an agreement with the Highways Department but there were no indications of any business being transacted with the Turnpike Commission. Nelson purchased or leased some of his cinders from a cinder bank owned by Randall's father, H. R. Randall, of Ashland, for 20 or 25 cents a ton but the elder Randall had no obligation in supplying the

Korean Bonus Is Being Written In Legislature

HARRISBURG (UP)—Bipartisan legislation spelling out a bonus for Pennsylvania's Korean veterans was under consideration today in the state Senate.

A bill introduced by Sens. Albert R. Pechan (R-Armstrong), Samuel B. Wolfe (R-Union) and Hugh J. McMenamin (D-Lackawanna) would give the estimated 335,000 veterans in the state $10 for each month of service between June 25, 1950 and July 27, 1953, with an extra $5 for each month of overseas duty, up to a maximum of $500.

Survivors of veterans who died during that period while on active service would automatically receive the maximum payment.

The constitutional amendment enabling the state to incur the estimated $150,000,000 debt required to pay the bonus last year received one of the two legislative approvals necessary, and if passed this year will go to the voters in a statewide referendum next November.

Eligible for the bonus under the measure would be all Korean veterans who gave Pennsylvania as their place of residence at the time of their enlistment or induction. Persons who have received a bonus "of a similar" nature from any other state would be ineligible.

Deadline for applications for the bonus was set at Dec. 31, 1963.

The first bonus payments, if the legislation clears on schedule, would probably be made sometime in 1959.

Centre County Judge Walker Has Fatal Attack

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Centre County Judge Ivan Walker, 65, of Bellefonte, was stricken by a fatal heart attack today as he rose to speak at the Pennsylvania Judicial Conference here.

More than 50 persons saw the veteran jurist, who was completing his second 10-year term on the bench, collapse. A physician was summoned, but Walker was dead when he arrived.

A native of Bellefonte, Walker attended nearby Pennsylvania State College (now University) and was admitted to legal practice in 1913.

He was appointed Centre County district attorney in 1923. Elected judge for his first term in 1937, he was re-elected in 1947.

In World War I he served as a sergeant with the American Expeditionary Forces and subsequently was an active member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

NEW YORK (UP) — King Saud of Saudi Arabia arrived today for a state visit with President Eisenhower. He was greeted with the full pomp of the U. S. Navy and diplomatic corps and a cold shoulder from the city of New York.

Speaking softly in Arabic on the pier to which he stepped from a U.S. destroyer, Saud said he was "very hopeful that my visit and discussions will produce a strengthening and reinforcement of the relations between our two countries and beneficial results for the Middle East and all mankind."

The King's 6 - year - old son, Prince Manshur, carried in the arms of one of the Saudi Arabian party, appeared delighted with the welcoming bands and panoply. He raised his left hand solemnly in salute each time he saw a camera pointed at him.

Saud and 16 of his party of 65 were piped off the liner Constitution in the lower bay this morning into a Coast Guard cutter which, delivered them to the destroyer Willis A. Lee.

A Marine band played aboard the destroyer, the green and white Saudi Arabian flag, bearing crossed scimitars, was run up and a flotilla of eight destroyers, their crews smartly at attention along the rails, passed in review.

Saud stepped from the destroyer onto a pier where a brightly striped green and white bedouin-style tent had been erected. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, was at the foot of the gangway and greeted the King with a handshake.

Inside the tent he was greeted by U.S. and United Nations officials before the flags of the United States and Saudi Arabia.

"I have come to this country in response to the invitation of my great friend His Excellency President Eisenhower," Saud said in his brief address on the pier.

"The strong ties fortunately linking our friendly countries make a visit such as this a natural event, which will provide an opportunity for a direct exchange of views on questions concerning both our countries and the region of the Middle East in general.

"The circumstances confronting the Middle East at the present time require all men of good will and firm intentions to unite their efforts in the service of the general peace, to strive to remove sources of tension, and to inaugurate a new age characterized by cordiality and good understanding on the part of all peoples."

Just before the Arabian party entered limousines for the Wal-

Controversy Over New Shortway In Legislature

HARRISBURG (UP)—The controversy over plans to have the proposed Keystone Shortway on the interstate highway system moved into the General Assembly today.

Four Republican lawmakers said in a resolution that construction of the shortway from Sharon to Stroudsburg would result in "virtual bankruptcy of our turnpike system."

The sponsors, Reps. George A. Goodling (York); Allen M. Gibson (Warren); George C. Magee (Crawford) and Harry Gramlich (Venango) said that if U.S. Route 6is not included in the federal interstate system "it will be a staggering blow to the growth and progress of the northern tier of counties and will reduce U.S. 6 to a afrm-to-market road."

Gov. George M. Leader recently asked the federal government to put the shortway on the interstate system.

The four legislators said that "all efforts" should be made to have the new cross-state interstate highway constructed at, near and upon U.S. 6.

State officials contend that inclusion of U.S. 6 on the interstate network, making it eligible for 90 per cent federal financing as a limited access highway, would damage the region more than it would help it.

Anti-west Drive Is Planned in Hungary

VIENNA (UP) — The puppet Communist Hungarian regime plans a massive anti-Western propaganda drive that may include "spy trials" of Western nationals, reliable sources here said today.

Four Britons, one American and one Norwegian are imprisoned in Communist jails. All but the Norwegian are being held incommunicado.

The informants also reported more than 17,000 Hungarians, mostly youths and students, are detained in prisons operated by the dread Communist secret police.

Students Confined

In addition, the sources said several hundred students deported to the Ukraine at the height of the November rebellion were said to have been brought back and confined in Hungarian secret police concentration camps.

The sources said the Communists promised students immediate freedom in exchange for signed statements they were incited to revolt against the Communist regime by "western agents."

The campaign among students appeared to be part of the overall Communist plan designed to "prove" Western countries were behind the freedom-from-Moscow uprising. The revolt was led by students, youths and intellectuals.

Western sources here believe the Communists are determined to try four young Britons on charges of "spying" as part of the planned propaganda drive. The four were captured by the Russians after crossing into Hungary from Yugoslavia.

Believed held in a secret police prison on Budapest's Foe Street are Miss Judy Cripps, 19-year-old granddaughter of the late Laborite Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps, Roger Cooper, and Christopher and Basil Lord, brothers.

Richard Roraback, 26, of Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., and Norwegian Einar Rcos, of Oslo, also are believed confined in the Foe St. prison. The Hungarian regime informed the U.S. legation in Budapest Monday of Roraback's arrest.

'Loose Look' Introduced by Fashion House

PARIS (UP)—The fashion house of Jean Patou introduced a new "loose look" in women's clothes yesterday to open the Paris spring showings which will decide the future feminine silhouette.

Patou's collection featured "fluid fashions" with two silhouettes —both with mibile, soft lines.

By day it is the "loose look," often resembling unfitted sacks. Evening-time styles run to pretty bouffant dance gowns with high, gathered skirts.

Underneath the two lines, the figure is normal. Bust, waist and hips are all back in the right places.

But Patou's designer, Marc Bohan, pretty much ignores feminine charms for his tailored clothes.

Belts make a successful comeback to the wardrobe. Like the silhouettes there are two styles — narrow loose tie belts that catch the fullness of unfitted suit jackets and wide sashes that firmly bind the waist of gay evening gowns.

Patou's hemlines run against the current long trend. They are extra short, barely covering the kneecap, giving the otherwise "fluid" creations a sawed-off appearance.

Contestant Runs TV Winnings Up to $122,000

NEW YORK (UP)—Charles Van Doren, intoxicated by his climb toward the headiest heights in TV giveaway history, indicated Monday night that he would try to fatten his quiz winnings of $122,000.

Van Doren, a 30-year-old English instructor at Columbia College, polished off two challengers on NBC-TV's "Twenty-One" to add $17,500 to his growing pile. On nine previous appearances on the show, Van Doren had built up a stake of $104,509

"It isn't that I like answering questions," explained Van Doren after the show. "It's an ordeal. I bite a few inches off my lips every time I'm on this show.

"But I like the challenge And I hate to quit anything. I really just hate to quit. On something like this, I think it takes more guts to quit than stay on."

Under the rules of the show, based roughly on the card game, "blackjack," Van Doren can remain on as a contestant as long as he feels he can continue to beat off challengers.

The two contestants he knocked off Monday night, Nicholas Teslenko and Anthony Whittier, were the ninth and 10th he has defeated in the game. Teslenko is a United Nations Interpreter; Whittier, a descendant of poet John Green-Whittier, is a writer from Boston.

Monday night, Van Doren, who earns $4,400 a year as a teacher, polished off a series of questions on geography, chemistry, baseball and buildings.

Soviet Employe Is Ousted in Spy Case

NEW YORK (UP)—An employe of the Soviet Embassy in Washington left here Monday night for Paris without commenting on speculation he had been expelled in connection with a newly-disclosed Soviet spy ring said to be operating in the United States.

Both the State Department and the Soviet Embassy refused to discuss the sudden departure of Vassil Molev, indicating that the Russian had been ousted from the country.

Molev, after first denying his identity when confronted by reporters at International Airport, said, "I can't say anything."

Held Minor Post

Molev and his wife, Taisiya, who accompanied him Monday night, had been in Washington since September, 1955. A spokesman at the Soviet Embassy said Molev held a minor post, similar to that of a clerk.

Air France officials said he and his wife had reservations only to Paris.

If Molev was expelled, he was the second Russian to be ousted in three days. Maj. Yuri P. Krylov, an assistant Soviet military attache, left last Saturday for home after being declared persona non grata (an undesirable person). U.S. government officials said Krylov improperly bought electronic equipment and tried to purchase American military secrets while in this country.

Indications were the State and Justice Departments would disclose within the next two days whether Molev was expelled or left the country voluntarily. There was speculation Molev was one of the Soviet officials whom the FBI had indicated were involved in the espionage ring uncovered last Friday with the arrest of three persons here.

In announcing the arrests, the FBI hinted that the spy suspects Jack Soble, 53, his wife, Myra, 52, and Jacob Albam, 65, had worked in consort with Soviet Embassy officials in allegedly spying for the Soviet Union.

Final selection of the special 23-member grand jury which will be asked to return indictments against the Sobles and Albam was expected to be completed late today.

Five Day Forecast

Western Pennsylvania: Temperature will average near normal. Colder Tuesday night and Wednesday and somewhat warmer Friday. Precipitation will average about one-half inch occurring as rain south and snow north on Tuesday and again about Friday.

Your Health—

Diabetics Can Lead Fairly Normal Lives

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Thirsty all the time, even in this cold weather? I mean are you really thirsty? Do you gulp lots of water, milk and soft drinks between meals?

If you do, let me urge you to see your doctor. While there may be nothing seriously wrong, you may be a victim of diabetes without even being aware of it.

Diabetes no longer need be a fatal disease — if you get medical help early enough. With insulin and prescribed diets, the majority of diabetics can, and do, live to a ripe old age.

A diabetic does not necessarily have to lead the life of an invalid. With proper treatment, he can probably live a normal or near normal life.

Unquenchable thirst is not always a symptom of diabetes, nor is it the only symptom. Be especially alert if your thirst is, accompanied by a loss of weight despite an increased appetite, weakness, pains in the legs, a dry skin and a general feeling of nervousness and irritability.

Frequent urination sometimes is a symptom, particularly if the urine causes great discomfort.

If you have frequent boils or ulcers on your feet, be sure to have your doctor check you for diabetes whether or not any of the other symptoms are present.

Sometimes the only complaint a patient will have as the condition progresses is loss of pep and uncontrolled drowsiness.

Who gets diabetes? Both children and adults can be victims.

But most diabetics are persons of middle age who have been hearty eaters for years and, generally, they are overweight. Since diabetes tends to run in families, any of you whose parents suffered from the disease may be more vulnerable.

A word of caution — let me urge you not to overeat. Be especially careful to avoid eating too much starchy and sweet foods. Get a lot of fruit and green and yellow vegetables. Also, have a physical checkup at least once a year.

Question and Answer

S. G.: I have dark spots in the corner of my eyes. What causes this? I wear glasses.

Answer: The dark spots in the corner of your eye might be due to a variety of causes. They might come from irritation from the glasses, from some skin infection or possibly from some circulatory disturbance.

An examination is needed to determine the cause.

Westinghouse Has Expansion Blues

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Westinghouse Electric Corp. said today it is faced with an "expansion problem at its East Pittsburgh Switchgear Department and may be forced to move the operation to another location.

A company spokesman said no decision has been made as yet, but discussions concerning a move have been held with representatives of the International Union of Electrical Workers, the Federation of Westinghouse Salaried Employes and several other unions. The department employs several thousand workers.

One of the new sites under consideration is at Trafford, Pa., where the company already owns a 132-acre tract and has other operations.

State Truck Owners Watch Progress of Law Amendment

HARRISBURG (UP) — Pennsylvania automotive dealers and small truck owners are watching with concern the progress of a proposed amendment to the state's truck safety law now under consideration in a House committee.

The amendment, sponsored by Reps. W. Mack Guthrie (R-Armstrong) and John A Lafore Jr. (R-Montgomery) would bring additional classes of commercial motor vehicles within the scope of the brake standards approved by the Commonwealth.

Until the amendment is passed automobile dealers have served notice that pickup and small truck sales have slowed to a trickle.

Guthrie explained that the truck safety law, enacted last year, became effective on Jan. 1. Under the new law many commercial motor vehicles are in a class considerably under the safe weight limits which they may carry. He said one class of trucks may be allowed a maximum gross weight of 16 500 lbs. while the next maximum gross weight allowable under the law jumps to 21,000 lbs

The catch is that some trucks have brakes which meet the state safety code to carry a payload of 19 500 lbs. but under the present law must drop back to the 16,500 lb class because there is no intermediate classification

Guthrie said numerous dealers ordered trucks for customers unaware that the weight changes were going into effect Now, he said, both the dealers and truckers are being subjected to inequities

The proposed amendment would setup 31 classes of vehicles for registration based on the maximum gross weight instead of the present eight classes The classes jump 2 000 gross weight pounds under the proposal allowing vehicles to be registered at more nearly the pay load capacity desired and still be within the safety limits of the law

The Guthrie-Lafore amendment would be retroactive to Jan 1, if approved by the General Assembly The House Republican majority has indicated it would give early consideration to the bill.

Leader

cinders Randall, Sr. had leased the bank to Nelson for the past year and a half. But at no time did he contact anybody in the Highways Department, the Turnpike Commission or the Property and Supplies Department or have anything to do with Nelson's bidding

McBride said he also looked into a rumor that a member of the Turnpike Commission received a telephone call from a Mrs. Randall in which the caller indicated an interest in the contract. He identified the commissioner as G Franklin McSorley, Pittsburgh, commission chairman recently suspended by Gov. George M Leader, effective Jan 30 pending disposition of charges of misconduct made by a Dauphin County grand jury.

From his home in Pittsburgh McSorley categorically denied any contact, whatsoever, either with Randall or Mrs. Randall

Says Charges Unfair

"I never talked to Dave Randall about turnpike business," McSorley said. "I have never talked to Mrs Randall and I wouldn't know her if she walked in the door and I have two witnesses here with me. I think the implications are very unfair"

McBride said he will contact Nelson to determine whether any of the cinders he hauled for the Highways Department or Turnpike Commission came from the Randall, Sr cinder bank. But he added:

"I think it has definitely been proved by the statement of McSorley and every scrap of paper we have consulted, including the statement of Yeagley, that he (Yeagley) never knew or heard of Mrs Randall I seems beyond any doubt that the story was wrong."

Randall denied categorically that he used his influence in any way or that it had anything to do with Torquato's dismissal by the governor. Leader at that time, gave Randall his full support.

The Andrews statement was the main business of the House at its opening session of the week.

Guard

tives defended the National Guard

Maj Gen Ellard A Walsh, National Guard Assn. president, called Wilson's remark "a lie"

The House Armed Services Committee prepared for a showdown with the Defense Department on the role of the National Guard in the military reserve program. An Armed Services subcommittee headed by Rep Overton Brooks (D-La) planned to open hearings Monday.

Wilson told the Armed Services Committee Monday the politically-potent Guard was a "sort of scandal" during the Korean war. He said the Guard was used by young men as a "draft dodging business"

That started an uproar

But a fight over the National Guard has been shaping up ever since the Defense Department announced that beginning April 1 predraft age youths enlisting in the Guard must take six months active duty training in order to maintain their draft exempt status.

Under the law, youths who join the Guard between the ages of 17 and 18½ are exempt from the two-year draft in the regular armed services They may volunteer for six months active duty but it isn't mandatory

The Defense Department has complained that under the present system the reserves which include the National Guard have men without proper basic training.

Supporters of the National Guard charge that the new order is an effort to help scuttle the Guard. They fear the requirement of six months active duty will cut Guard enlistments

Walsh said a Guardman who performs combat duty or is subject to such duty at a moment's notice "has every right to resent being tagged a draft dodger as Mr. Wilson unfortunately has chosen to call him."

Rep William G Bray (R-Ind), an Armed Services Committee member, told a reporter Wilson's testimony showed the Defense Department "is entirely unsympathetic to a real reserve program."

Rep. John J. Flynt (D-Ga) another member of the committee, said Wilson's statement was "wholly unwarranted and is an insult to the men of the National Guard."

Two Die in Blast

TENERIFE, Canary Islands (UP) — An explosion and fire aboard the 8,000-ton Spanish tanker Zaragoza while it was refueling killed two men and injured three others Monday night. Two other men were missing.

Probe of Fund Is Urged

HARRISBURG (UP)—The House of Representatives today considered a Republican proposal for a possible grand jury investigation into the operation of o $1,175,000 special fund in the state Labor and Industry Department's Bureau of Employment Security.

A controversy over the fund's handling led to the recent dismissal of department secretary John R. Torquato by Gov. George M. Leader, and the suspension of 23 persons on its payroll.

Majority Leader Albert W Johnson (R-McKean) and Rep Edwin E. Lippincott (Delaware) suggested that the governor submit through the state Justice Department "all information and evidence of wrongdoing of the special fund" to Dauphin County District Attorney Huette F. Dowling, "for the purpose of submission to the grand jury"

Meanwhile, the governor recalled his nomination of Frank A. Garufi as justice of the peace in Apollo, Armstrong County, after Senate Republicans said he was on the list of those suspended from the special fund payroll.

Senate Majority Whip Albert R Pechan (R-Armstrong) Monday night objected to the nomination of Garufi on the ground "it doesn't make sense to fire a man one week and then appoint him as a judge the next."

Senate Minority Leader John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) then asked for adoption of his resolution calling for a senatorial investigation of the operation of the fund, which is made up of fines imposed against employers for improper returns to the Unemployment Compensation Fund.

Dent's resolution was held up by Senate Republicans last week who contended that two other investigations — one by the governor's office and one sponsored by the House of Representatives— made a Senate inquiry unnecessary.

Saud

dorf Astoria Hotel, representatives of the Algerian Nationalist movement, battling with France for control of that African land, presented Saud with an Algerian flag inscribed in gold: 'Free Algeria, salutes its defender, King Saud", Saud was lauded as "the first to bring the attention of the United Nations to the Algerian problem."

Saud was scheduled to spend today at the United Nations where he will be received formally as a head of state and address the General Assembly.

He will go to Washington Wednesday for an unprecedented welcome. President Eisenhower is scheduled to meet him in person at the airport.

Only city recognition of the King's arrival was assignment of special police details to protect the visitors.

Mayor Robert F Wagner said Saud would not receive the usual welcome that consists of a harbor greeting and ticker-tape parade because of the King's anti-Zionism and tolerance of slavery.

But President Eisenhower for the first time will go to National Airport in Washington to greet a visiting ruler. Previously, Vice President Richard M Nixon had greeted chiefs of state on their arrival at the airport there

Acting White House Press Secretary Murray Snyder said Saud was invited to the United States in the interest of world peace.

Saud's visit was seen of great importance because he enjoys absolute rule over a Moslem stronghold that controls vast oil resources and is a power in Arab politics.

Sanctity of Trial by Jury Upheld Again

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court has served notice once more that the sanctity of "trial by jury" in American courts must remain inviolate.

For that reason, the three-year old case of labor leader Ben Gold will begin again with a new trial in Federal District Court here.

The court in a 6-3 ruling Monday said there had been "official intrusion into the privacy of the jury" — unintentional but nevertheless wrong.

Gold, long-time head of the Fur & Leather Workers, was convicted April 30, 1954 on a charge of filing a false non - Communist affidavit with the National Labor Relations Board. He had publicly resigned from the Communist Party in 1950 to comply with the Taft-Hartley law requirement that non - Communist oaths must be filed by all officers whose unions desire board services.

At the trial, the Justice Department successfully attacked both the resignation and the affidavit as phony.

The jury tampering question arose through an FBI investigation of the entire jury panel on a matter relating to another case. The FBI said the agents did not know beforehand that three of the jurors questioned were actually serving on the Gold jury.

The trial continued after one of the jurors had been replaced by an alternate

In other actions Monday, the court:

—Agreed to determine whether too harsh a punishment was meted out to New York racketeer Frank Costello in 1953 for income tax evasion. The decision, which will govern other cases, was also sought by the Justice Department

—Ruled seven to two that the government is open to damage suits stemming from the negligence of Forest Service firefighters in all states where a private person would be subject to such a suit. The litigation will go forward in Federal District Court in Seattle, Wash. Where property owners sued for damages suffered in a fire in the Olympic National Forest in 1951.

Aliquippa Man Sentenced for Traffic Deaths

PITTSBURGH (UP)—John Barton, 23, Aliquippa, was under a 9 to 18-month workhouse sentence today on involuntary manslaughter charges growing out of the deaths of two persons in an automobile collision on the Penn-Lincoln Parkway West.

The state charged that Bart smashed headon into another machine near the Green Tree Interchange after driving the wrong way on the westbound lane of the parkway for more than seven miles. He was convicted last April 13, and a plea for a new trial subsequently was refused.

At the time of the trial, Barton testified that he could recall nothing of the events of the day of the accident June 25, 1955, after he struck his head on a rafter while working as a carpenter on a house in Upper St. Clair Twp.

Slaying Suspects Face Each Other at Inquest

CHICAGO (UP) —A face-to-face meeting between the man believed by police to be the slayer of two teenage sisters and his alleged accomplice was set today at the opening of an inquest into the girls' deaths.

Cook County Coroner Walter McCarron said he has asked that Bennie (The Dishwasher) Bedwell, 21, and the other man, William Cole Willingham Jd., 26, appear at the inquest.

Willingham has denied any connection with the sex and liquor murder of Patricia Grimes, 13, and her sister, Barbara, 15, whose nude and frozen bodies were found in a roadside ditch a week ago today.

Willingham's statements and subsequent investigations have led some officials, including McCarron, to cast doubt on Bedwell's confession.

"If the confession is not true," McCarron said "that fact should be disclosed as quickly as possible for the benefit of two girls who are dead and unable to defend themselves."

Willingham, a self-styled hillbilly singer from Richmond, Va., admitted to police he and Bedwell "picked up" two girls on skid row, but denied they were the Grimes sisters.

Police said Willingham nicknamed 'Frank Sinatra" because of his singing, resembled the man named "Frank" whom Bedwell cited as his partner in the crime

Willingham said the girls he and Bedwell took on a tour of skid row saloons shortly after Christmas were Indian girls from Michigan

At Detroit, police said one of the girls, Carol King, 19, confirmed she and her girl friend, Irene Dean, dated Willingham and Bedwell at the time.

House Debates Eisenhower Doctrine

Expects to Approve Proposal

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Eisenhower Doctrine came up for debate today in the House.

The House was expected to approve it overwhelmingly Wednesday.

The Doctrine resolution authorizes President Eisenhower to use troops if necessary and spend $600 million in economic aid in the next 30 months to prevent Red penetration in the Middle East.

The resolution reached the House floor under a gag rule: No amendments and debate limited to one day.

However, the Doctrine's progress was slower in the Senate.

The Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees still were considering it. And they interrupted doing that this morning to vote on a Democratic demand for a full-scale review of U.S. policy in the Middle East.

Other developments:

Schools—Top Republicans on the House Education and Senate Welfare Committees prepared to introduce the administration's $2.2 billion school aid program. Several Democrats on the Education Committee predicted the committee would approve a bigger school aid bill in about six weeks.

Uniforms—The Senate Investigating subcommittee resumed its search for alleged graft in military uniform buying. The subcommittee summoned officials of Madison Park Clothes of Parkside, N.J.—a firm that has held more than $5 million in federal uniform contracts.

Racketeering — Senate leaders planned to introduce a resolution setting up a special bi-partisan committee to investigate labor racketeering. Creation of the eight-man committee would be a compromise ending a dispute between two committees over which should conduct the investigation.

Banking—The administration is said to have agreed to a compromise on who will conduct a sweeping investigation of the nation's financial system. The administration originally wanted a citizens' commission to do the job. Now it is said to have agreed to having it done by a 13-member commission — including the Democratic chairmen and ranking Republicans of the Senate and House Banking Committees.

Guard—The House Armed Services Committee prepared for a showdown with the Defense Department in an open fight over the role of the National Guard in the military reserve program. An Armed Services subcommittee planned to open hearings next Monday.

Russia Is Opposed to UN Force

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) —Russia was reported today to have sided completely with Egypt in opposing U.S. and other demands that U.N. Emergency Forces (UNEF) occupy the Gaza Strip and Gulf of Aqaba areas contested by Israel and Egypt.

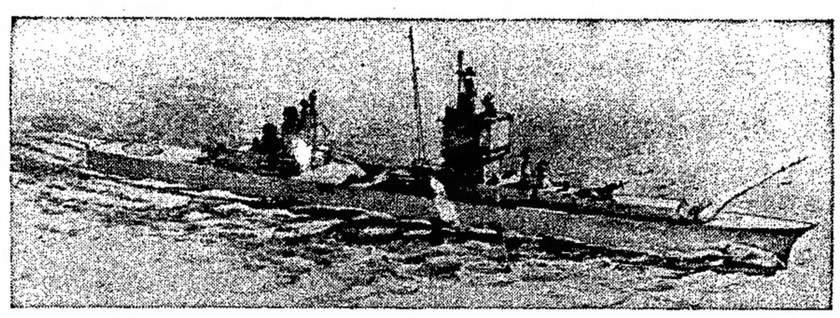
The Soviet was expected to announce its stand at today's session of the General Assembly's debate on the Middle East. Debate will be suspended this afternoon when King Saud of Saudi Arabia addresses the group.

The United States Monday put its weight behind Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's recommendation that UNEF occupy part of the Aqaba shoreline to ensure freedom of passage in the gulf for all ships, including those of Israel.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., also endorsed Hammarskjold's proposal to station UNEF troops on both Egypt's and Israel's sides of the 1949 armistice demarcation line, especially in the sensitive Gaza and El Auja areas.

Israeli Ambassador Abba S. Eban told the assembly his government had no intention of annexing the disputed areas. But he said before Israel gives them up the United Nations should give guarantees they will not be used again by Egypt for military actions against Israel.

Eban reaffirmed Israel's offer to sign "an agreement of non-belligerance and mutual non-aggression with Egypt immediately," but there was no indication his offer would be accepted. Egypt has threatened to take stern action if Israel does not evacuate the disputed areas.



NUCLEAR-POWER MISSILE CRUISER SCHEDULED — This is an artist's sketch of the nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser scheduled for fiscal 1957 in the U. S. Navy's building program. It is designed to operate offensively and independently of other forces under nuclear warfare conditions. The new cruiser will carry most of the Navy's missiles, which would include the Regulus II, the Talos and the Terrier, thus making the ship a lethal weapon against air, sea or land forces. USW Ballot Hearing Opens

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Frank O'Brien, Pittsburgh millhand who charges officers of the United Steelworkers conspired to keep his name off the ballot in a union election, sought today to prove that he was deprived illegally of three local union nominations.

O'Brien has asked Allegheny County Common Pleas Court to halt a union election for the directorship of USW District 16, in the Pittsburgh area, unless his name is placed on the ballot.

At the opening session of a hearing on O'Brien's petition Monday, the recording secretaries of two of the local unions, whose nomination actions are in dispute, testified that the members had backed O'Brien.

O'Brien seeks to oppose John Murray, long-time District 16 director and close associate of USW President David J. McDonald, in the Feb. 12 union elections. He contends he was nominated by seven local unions, two more than required by the USW constitution. Union officials contend only four of the nominations were valid.

First witness for O'Brien was Charles Bohammer, recording secretary of Local 1924, McKees Rocks. He said members of the group had voted 23-15 to nominate O'Brien on Dec. 10.

He said he mailed the nomination certificate to USW international headquarters the next day, but admitted under cross-examination that he used ordinary mail instead of registered mail as specified by union regulations. Deadline for filing of nomination certificates was midnight, Dec. 14.

Also testifying on behalf of O'Brien was Joseph Koller, recording secretary of Local 1532, Neville Island. He said his group had held a special meeting on Dec. 4, but Bob Gaitens, USW staff representative, told the members nominations could only be made at a regular meeting.

Later, Koller said, Gaitens asked to be nominated for the directorship and he was given a nominating certificate, stamped with the local's seal and bearing Koller's signature.

Koller said the local met again on Dec. 11 and nominated O'Brien, but he was unable to retrieve the nominating certificate from Gaitens. O'Brien's attorneys contend the certificate was turned into the board of tellers bearing the name of Murray.

Fayette County Young Democrats Installed

Officers were installed for the Fayette County Young Democrat Club at a banquet meeting held Sunday evening at Finnell's Hotel near Uniontown. R. J. Murphy, of Washington, D. C., director of Young Democrats on the Democratic National Committee, was the installing officer.

Installed were Joseph Petrucci, of Menallen township, president; Betty Dolfi, of Washington Township, first vice president; Sylvester Lappa, of Menallen, second vice president; William Moody, of Redstone Township, secretary; Pete Tallerico, of Washington Township, treasurer and Joseph Ritz, of Luzerne Township, sergeant at arms.

Chapter presidents installed included Enise Ball, German; Sara Urinich, Masontown; Louis Sabatini, Redstone; Charles Pabis, Washington Township; James Reilly, Uniontown; Pete Rebottini, Perry and Herbert Rankin, Wharton Township.

Murphy was also one of the guest speakers and emphasized the necessity of keeping "young ideas" alive in the organization and also concentration on the women's vote.

Principal speaker was William J. Lederer, deputy secretary of the State Department of Revenue, who drew a comparison of the theoretical and practical politician. He stressed the fact that every candidate should be willing to undergo a personal test and come "up through the ranks" as a political worker before expecting further recognition.

G. D. Salvo, of Uniontown, retiring president, was toastmaster and Congressman Thomas E. Morgan spoke briefly.

Guests introduced were Stanley Bregman, president of the District of Columbia Young Democrats; William J. Graham, county commissioner and Democratic Chairman; Clyde Tricana, president of the Washington County Young Democrats; State Senator Thomas J. Kalman; Assemblymen Pat Trusio, E. Gadd Snider, Nicholas Kornick and Robert Wheeler, Jr.; John R. Hoye, Uniontown Democratic chairman; Alice Charnovic, president of the Women's Democrat Club of Uniontown and District Attorney Joseph E. Kovach.

The Rev. E. V. Curry, of All Saints R. C. Church, Masontown, formerly of St. Leonard Church, Monessen, asked the invocation and benediction.

Beck Opposed To AFL-CIO on Fifth Amendment

MIAMI BEACH (UP) — Fiery President Dave Beck of the Teamsters refused defiantly today to go along with the AFL-CIO Executive Council's stand against union leaders' use of the Fifth Amendment at congressional inquiries.

Union leaders remained silent on Beck's opposition to the council policy and there were indications the matter would not be brought up at today's session of the council's annual mid-winter meeting.

There was speculation the council would leave the matter as it is unless Beck's union flagrantly defies the council ultimatum.

At the opening session Monday, the council adopted a stern policy calling on union officials to speak up "freely and without reservation" during a congressional inquiry into labor racketeering.

The statement, drafted by AFL-CIO President George Meany and opposed by only one council member, reported to be Beck, said officials who use the Fifth Amendment as a dodge to avoid investigation or coverup corruption have "no right to continue to hold office."

But Beck, whose union numbers some 1.4 million members and is the largest in the AFL-CIO, said in a statement Monday night "the action taken by the Executive Council. . . . does not in any way alter our position."

Several members of Beck's truck union two weeks ago refused to testify before the Senate Permanent subcommittee on investigations on grounds the subcommittee lacked proper authority to investigate unions.

Appointment to 'Pike Commission Under Study

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Senate Executive Nominations Committee today considered Gov. George M. Leader's appointment of Merritt A. Williamson, of Pennsylvania State University, to a vacancy on the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

The appointment of Williamson, dean of the College of Engineering at the university, to the $13,000 a year post was submitted to the Republican-controlled Senate Monday night. It was referred to the Executive Nominations Committee without comment.

However Senate Majority Whip Albert R. Pechan (R-Armstrong) said later he would not vote for Williamson's confirmation "until I know who I'm voting for."

The governor appointed Williamson to the agency in order to give it a working quorum of three members. Two of the present McSorley, Pittsburgh Democrat, and Republican Commissioner James F. Torrance, Export, were suspended by the governor, effective Wednesday, pending disposition of indictments returned against them by a Dauphin County grand jury.

McSorley was cited for misconduct in office and Torrance and 21 others for conspiracy in an alleged multi-million dollar swindle of turnpike funds.

Cold Wave Gripping West Coast Today

By UNITED PRESS

A costly cold wave gripped the West Coast today and freezing rain and snow slicked streets and highways in widespread sections of the nation from the Plains States to New England.

The Western cold wave forced the layoff of thousands of lumber, metal and construction workers in the Northwest. It also brought chilling temperatures to much of California.

In California, San Francisco got its first snowfall Monday since December of 1932, and only the 30th recorded in the city since 1871.

Temperatures dropped to a low of 34 in Los Angeles Monday, and weathermen foresaw no relief from the icy readings.

Heavy snow in the Rockies stalled two Denver and Rio Grande trains between Chama, N.M., and Cumbres Pass. A rotary snow plow freed the trains, then was blocked itself by a snow slide atop the pass.

The Army sent four "weasels" to rescue the 23-man rotary plow crew at the pass. The wide-tread snow vehicles were expected to reach the group today.

Elsewhere, a band of freezing rain iced highways from northern Missouri through Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

A bus and tractor-trailer collided near Altoona, Pa., on an icy highway Monday, killing four passengers and injuring at least six others.

Weathermen said the cold air mass will extend into the Central Plains and the Ohio Valley during the day. Snow flurries are expected to continue from Minnesota through northern Missouri and the Great Lakes.

Married Couples Can File Tax Returns the Best Way

(This is the second of five articles to help taxpayers make out their federal income tax returns.)

By RUSSELL C. HARRINGTON
Commissioner of Internal Revenue

WASHINGTON (UP) — Married couples usually can save money by filing a joint return instead of separate returns for their federal income tax. The only sure way to tell which method costs less is to figure the tax both ways.

The law allows you to file either jointly or separately in any year, whichever way you select. In other words, you are not bound to file jointly this year just because you did last year.

The same blank forms are used whether you file jointly or separately. Generally, if the combined income of husband and wife was less than $5,000, you can make the choice between the simple card Form 1040A or the longer Form 1040. If your income was $5,000 or more, you must file on Form 1040.

There are certain situations in which joint filing are forbidden. These happen in relatively few cases, but should be remembered. They are: If you were divorced or legally separated on or before Dec. 31, 1956; if you are married to a non-citizen who does not live in this country; or if you and your wife report your income on the basis of different tax years (that is, if you report your income on a 12-month period ending Oct. 31, for instance, and your wife uses the calendar year).

Late Marriages Acceptable

Even if your wife had no income at all, you may file a joint return. And if you didn't marry her until New Year's Eve—before midnight, of course — you may still file a joint return.

If your wife worked a little during the year and earned less than $600, it will probably be to your advantage to file a joint return, rather than letting her file separately. She might get a refund by filing separately in this case, but you could not file a joint return and you would lose her as an exemption. (More about exemptions tomorrow).

If your wife or husband died during the year and you did not remarry before the end of the year, you may file a joint return for the full year. And under certain circumstances the surviving spouse may claim the same income-splitting benefits of a joint return for the two years following.

When husband and wife file a joint return, both must sign the return and both become liable for any amount of tax owed.

In filing a joint return you add both the husband's and the wife's income and list the exemptions and deduction (standard or itemized) to which both are entitled. Special tax rates are provided for calculating the tax you owe if you file jointly. The rates are figured as if your joint income were split in half and you each paid the tax on one half.

Remember This

Keep in mind if you file separate returns that if one of you itemizes his or her deductions the other must also itemize.

Whether filing jointly or separately, if you compute your tax and find you owe more tax, attach a check or a money order for the full amount due. Make it payable to Internal Revenue Service and send it with your return to Director of Internal Revenue for your district.

When you file jointly, you attach both the husband's and the wife's forms W-2 to the joint return. If your returns are separate, attach the right form to the right return.

One tax item which affects couples more often than it affects individuals is buying or selling a house.

As a general rule, if you sell your home or any other personal property, such as stocks or bonds, your must pay a tax on the profit you make. There is an exception which applies in certain cases where you sell your residence.

Profit Must Be Reinvested

If you sold your home during 1956 for a higher price than you paid in buying it and making improvements on it, you need not pay a tax on the profit if you buy another home within 12 months and pay as much or more for the new one as you got for the old one.

If you sold your home and are building a new one — rather than buying an existing home — you have 18 months instead of 12.

If you buy a new home for less than you sold the old one, you must pay tax on part, or all, of the profit from selling the old. If you owned the old home for more than six months, the tax may be at lower rates.

Report all of this in detail on a separate tax form, called Schedule D, and summarize it on page 3 of Form 1040.

I will discuss the tax deductibility of interest payments on the mortgage the day after tomorrow, in an article on all kinds of deductions.

The Personal Attack On Secretary Dulles

THE PERSONAL attack which a small group of Democratic senators, all of them from the party's left wing, are making on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is about as dismal an enterprise as Washington has seen Joe McCarthy's hey-day.

The gist of the complaints against Secretary Dulles — if they can be said to have a gist — is that he is somehow personally responsible for the latest crisis in the Middle East. If Mr. Dulles had just been more clever or more foresighted, the argument runs, we would not be in this mess, the western alliance would not have been disturbed, Mr. Nasser would not have seized the Suez Canal, etc.

No one needs a detailed knowledge of the problems of the Middle East to see how empty are these complaints. Mr. Dulles did not invent the ancient blood feud between Jew and Moslem which is at the root of the whole trouble. He did not create the Arab resentment of British and French imperial policies which has fanned the flame of Arab nationalism. Certainly our Secretary of State bears no responsibilities for the mischievous trouble-making of the Communists. And if Nasser seized the canal because Mr. Dulles refused to build him a dam — are the Secretary's critics suggesting that the way to make Nasser behave is to appease him?

TO BE SURE, there is a mess in the Middle East. But it is a long way from being an American mess. Nor is it a Dulles mess, although nobody pretends that American policy has been 100 per cent clairvoyant at every point. It wasn't under the Democrats, either, which the senatorial experts seem conveniently to forget.

The current crisis in the Middle East, as any intelligent American who has been reading the news well knows, is a result of a complex combination of forces and events. There is the Kremlin's policy of making more trouble where trouble already exists; there is the subborn feud between Israel and the Arab states, culminated by the indefensible invasion of Egypt by the Israeli army in full force; and there was the foolish attempt by Britain and France to solve the Suez problem by force.

These are the basic facts of the situation. And these senators are ignoring them completely in their berserk attack on the Secretary of State. Their arguments have so little substance of truth that their partisan motives stand shamefully naked. This is not "loyal opposition" but the crudest kind of politics.

Liquor 'Profiteering'

THE PENNSYLVANIA Alcoholic Beverage Study, Inc., a private agency which has made important contributions to the state's liquor control system, has issued its regular biennial report. And the report contains the rather startling charge that the state government is "profiteering" in its liquor monopoly.

The PABS points out that state profits on liquor have risen from $51 million in 1945 to $92 million in 1955. The profits, according to the Study, now amount to 18.4 per cent of the Commonwealth's entire revenues.

This is too much, the report claims, and is "leading to a revival of large-scale bootlegging".

The PABS correctly points out that the state government is not in the liquor business—or should not be — to make money. The basic function of the liquor control system is to keep the sale of liquor under close public supervision.

But this function, it is held, has been gradually displaced by the desire to make liquor sales produce more and more revenue. And the supervision of the liquor traffic has been suffering.

This and other observations in the PABS report deserve close attention in the legislature.

Kelley's Settlement

REP. AUGUSTINE B. Kelley, of Westmoreland County, has managed to bring to a conclusion his long-pending libel suit against the authors and publishers of the book, "U. S. A. Confidential". And Mr. Kelley is entitled to feel that the results justify his prolonged legal contest.

One of the two authors and the estate of the other have made full apologies to the Congressman for statements made about him in the book. In addition, he has received an undisclosed sum for the payment of legal fees.

Like most publications which are sold to the public bearing the label, "confidential", this book was thoroughly scurrilous. Mr. Kelley is not the only prominent person who has succeeded in bringing the authors to time.

This is not an easy thing to do, however, for the law's delays can be exasperating in such cases. Mr. Kelley's suit has been pending since 1953.

But we think if more people went to the trouble to defend themselves against attacks on their characters, there would be fewer such attacks.

Merry-Go-Round—

Senators Had 'Whing-ding' In Europe

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Most guarded documents on Capitol Hill are not reports regarding American security but the expense accounts of U. S. congressmen while traveling abroad. This column, however, has now gained access to some of these top-secret vouchers.

Only reason for the secrecy is to conceal from the public how much money congressional tourists blow on extravagances. The public has a right to know, however, how their legislators spend the taxpayers' money, especially the fact that an all-time spending record was probably set by Senators Chavez of New Mexico, McClellan of Arkansas, Stennis of Mississippi, and Saltonstall of Massachusetts, who made a lavish tour through European and Mediterranean countries in late 1955.

Mr. Pearson

This column has tried for a year to find out how much this de luxe trip cost the taxpayers Now the extravagant facts can be told.

McClellan and Stennis took along their wives. Chavez brought his son, Dennis Jr.; personal physician, Dr. William Lovelace of Albuquerque, lawyer, A. T. Hannet and Mrs. Hannet; secretary, Frances Ortiz; and assorted assistant, Charles Davis, Walter Stewart; Gloria Butland, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Merrick.

They traveled on government planes and ships, so the transportation costs can only be estimated. In Spain, Senators McClellan and Stennis decided to go home early and demanded a special Air Force plane. Because of the split party, the Air Force sent two empty planes all the way across the Atlantic to pick them up at an estimated cost of $20,000. When this got into the papers, McClellan hastily arranged commercial transportation for his wife, and both senators demanded an apology from the Defense Department for embarrassing them.

60 Boxes of Kleenex

The senatorial party spent a whopping $37,810 11 for hotels, night clubs, excursions, souvenirs, and the like. They claimed only $1,093 of this was personal; the remaining $36,717.11 was paid by the taxpayers as "official."

Most of their "official" expenses were run up in Paris, Rome and Madrid. They spent $11,004.55 in Spain, $8,393 66 in Italy, and $6,062 84 in France Next highest bill was charged up in England for $4,674 80 Yet they stayed no more than a week in any country.

They were supposed to be inspecting military installations But their expense vouchers didn't sound very military. Instead, the vouchers from Italy, for example, listed taxis on the Isle of Capri, cocktails at Piazza, Blue Grotto excursion, trip to Pompeii, rental of autos in Naples.

A note to the State Department from John G. Bacon, Embassy attache in Rome, reported. "I paid all expenses up to date including rental of vehicles, whiskey, Kleenex, etc."

A voucher from London listed Navy wine, Embassy wine, Dorchester Hotel reception, H J Adams theater tickets, and Daimler Hire of Cars. At the bottom, this note was added "Items for which no receipts obtainable included 60 boxes of Kleenex, two cartons cigarettes, Wedgwood china, tips."

For one day in Edinburgh, Scotland, a State Department cable reported: "All expenses Chavez group in Edinburgh paid by Wilber (Edward B. Wilber, State Department representative accompanying the senators). Advances made to him by D O. London Known expenses hotel, rental of private automobiles, dollar equivalent $928 20."

Dublin Was Cheap

Cheapest side trip was made to Dublin for only $536 93 Yet the senators didn't exactly economize. For example, they ran up a $140 bill in Dublin with Cyril McCormack & Co, Ltd, for use of three Austin Princess limousines, three Humber Pullman limousines, and three Dodge sedans.

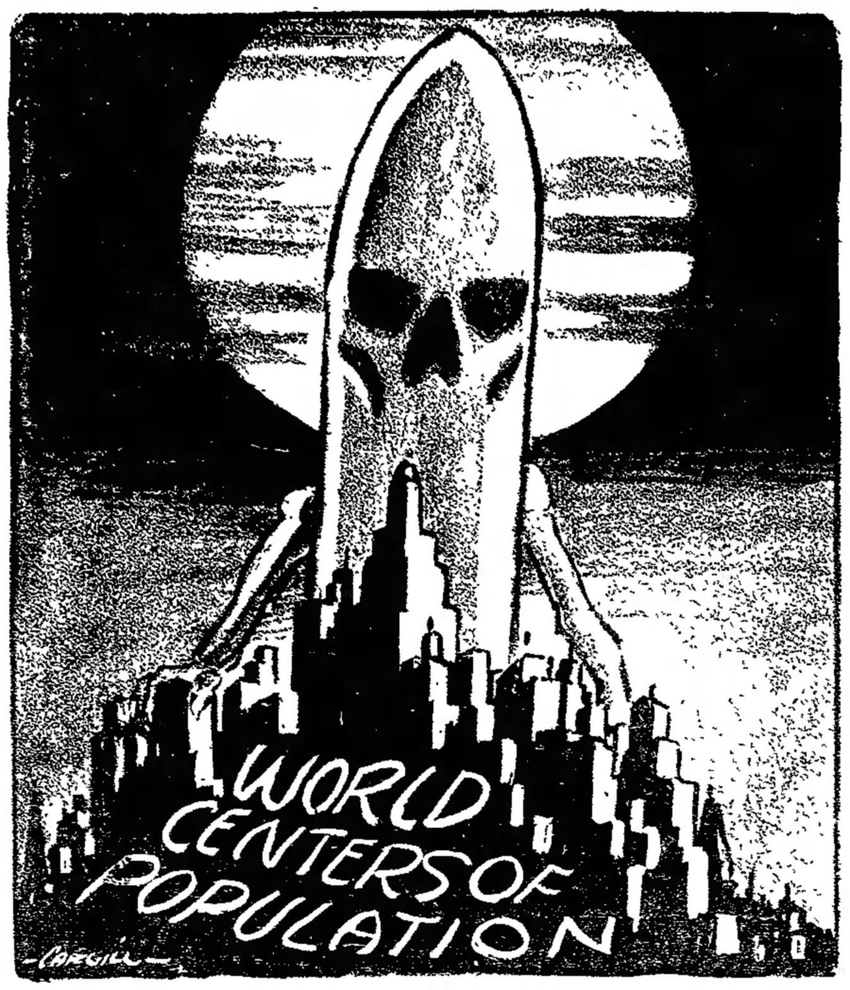
The big bills were paid by the State Department representative out of counterpart funds — local currency paid for American aid. But the senators also drew generous amounts of the taxpayers' money for their "personal expenses."

In Paris, Saltonstall drew $453 to cover his out-of-pocket expenses In Rome, Chavez took $594 09, Stennis $361 89, McClellan $250 38, and Saltonstall $238 - 57. In London, McClellan drew 244 08, Chavez $183 11. Stennis $187.68, and Saltonstall $69.70.

Biggest spender was not a senator, however, but Chavez' playboy son, Dennis, Jr. He signed vouchers for over $3,000 worth of Spanish pesetas in Madris, part of which was spent in night clubs.

There is no breakdown on his spending in other countries, though a note from Marcelle Lecomte of the American Embassy in Paris states: "I am still keeping other blank receipts as I have not completely settled all the bills incurred by Dennis Chavez, Jr.. and others."

Still at Large



From Washington—

Is Eisenhower a 'New Dealer'?

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

It is evident that President Eisenhower's new $72 billion budget is the target of sharp and mounting criticism by much conservative opinion.

Principally because of the size of the budget, not because of the purposes for which the money would be spent, Mr. Eisenhower is being described as a profligate spender undermining the strength of the economy and some of his critics apply the worst epithet at their command: "No better than a New Dealer" or "Just a New Dealer at Heart."

Mr. Drummond

I share the view that prudent trimming of the projected appropriations should be tried, but before conservative opinion — mostly business opinion — recklessly solidifies itself in opposition to the first conservative government this nation has had after 20 years of depression and war, there are economic and political facts about the Eisenhower budget and the Eisenhower program at which one ought to take a second look.

Population Increase

It is true that the projected budget is the highest in our peacetime history — up $7,200,000 above fiscal 1955, which was the lowest spending year of the Eisenhower administration

But it is important to bear in mind that during this period the population has increased 11,000,000, the nation's labor force has grown by 4 000,000, employment is up, unemployment is down, the government is operating in the black, the revenue derives from tax rates which were cut in 1954, and the 11 per cent increase in federal spending is matched by a 12 5 per cent increase in the gross national product.

The $3 billion increase in the budget over a year ago does not stem from any casual atutude toward the taxpayer's dollar or any pie-in-the sky philosophy that spending is fun.

It stems from the fact of the cold war which is as cold, if not colder, today than ever before. At least 63 per cent of the budget is for national security

It stems from the fact that modern means of delivering the hydrogen bomb; including missiles, are increasingly complex and increasingly expensive.

It stems from the fact that, although the administration has reduced the number of federal employes substantially, the salaries of federal workers have, in the face of rising living costs, rightly been increased

Civilian Needs

It stems from the fact no national administration can neglect the basic civilian needs of the country—the long delayed building of public schools, farm relief, etc

It seems to me a serious misreading of what the President stands for and extremely shortsighted for conservative opinion to confuse the Eisenhower administration with the New Deal Whereas the New Deal leaned heavily toward minute, far-ranging federal regulation of business with an affection for price controls and wage controls and government interference with collective bargaining, whereas the New Deal had little faith in the dynamics of competitive enterprise, the Eisenhower policies spurn regulation, encourage free enterprise and seek to protect the incentives to work, save and invest.

And what are the political realities? I am convinced

That if conservative opinion, particularly conservative business opinion — goes into opposition to the Eisenhower administration, it will deny itself any important voice in national policy for many years to come — and that will be bad for itself and bad for the country.

What Is Alternative?

That if business conservatives desert in any large degree the Eisennower administration (conservative in money matters, humanitarian in human matters), they will be doing enlightened conservatism a grave disservice because they will be separating themselves from the center body of American politics

That the political alternative to Eisenhower conservatism is not a swing to more conservatism — not the election of a George Humphrey to the presidency — but a radical swing to the left.

It would be my judgment that "Eisenhower Republicanism" is the best ally business will have as far as one can see ahead, and to suggest that business is opposed to the Eisennower humanitarianism is to invite another period of political exile.

Judgment of Military 'Brass' Is Questioned

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sir Winston Churchill, in the first volume of his "History of the English Speaking People," wrote of a period when high taxes and other impositions were becoming too heavy for the people to bear, or beyond their willingness to bear.

Mr. Wilson

They were being taxed," Sir Winston wrote, "to the limit of their credulity."

It is a rich phrase full of meaning which, somehow, seems to bear on a current matter of similar import to the common man. Now, 700 years after the time of which Churchill wrote in such striking language, there is raised again the question: Is the credulity of taxpayers approaching a limit in accepting explanations of why taxes must be—and long continue to be — so high

British Begin Doubting

The taxpayers in this instance are not the citizens of the United States. They are British subjects, who, it appears, are beginning to doubt that pinning a cluster of stars on a man's shoulders and fixing heavy bands of goldbraid on his sleeve must, automatically, make him an infallible and always fair judge of what should be done each year with most of the money anted up by the taxpayers

British subjects are beginning to focus a questioning attention on on this matter because their nation is spending now for national defense at a rate which their leaders believe could cause the United Kingdom to go broke and hungry

British Defense Secretary Duncan Sandys arrived here this weekend to discuss this and related matters with U.S. officials. Out of these discussions is likely to flow more commitments of U.S. men and money to the collective defense of the free world against the spread of police state slavery.

Project Is Expensive

There could not be a better nor more popular objective nor has there ever been — short of hot war — a more expensive project, expensive for the United States, the British and, to a lesser degree, the other free Allies.

President Eisenhower is on record that U S taxpayers no longer dare count the cost of this defense objective. But his Treasury Department is required by law to tote it up from day to day and the overall costs are in eye-popping figures.

"Don't count the cost" has been pretty much the British approach to defense, too. But the British government now is changing all of that toward an immediate reduction of spending

Based On Estimates

In Great Britain, as in the United States, defense spending has been very largely on the basis of estimates and judgments of the military high brass. With that in mind, a question long overdue for considerable taxpayer consideration is this: Is the high brass best equipped to pass the judgments, especially when the high brass on both sides of the Atlantic are likely to plug for their own favorite weapons, while equally high brass down the Pentagon or war office corridor is assuring all comers that the ballyhooed weapon actually is no good in a fight?

That is how the U S Navy and the U S Air Force brass have been reaching their high cost estimates of what defense really should be Best example, of course, is the interservice row about aircraft carriers and intercontinental bombers. But there has been costly competition, too, among Army, Navy and Air Force for the biggest slices of the atomic weapon pie

Use Is Found for the Boss' Pepper Grinder

By MARGARET LATROBE

Next to people and football, our boss loved pepper. He detested swank pretensions with the same ardor, but when pepper mills first became fashionable he overcame this fetish far enough to accept a tall wooden grinder of East Indian condiment. This object dominated his table and his conversation far beyond its real merit.

Mrs. Latrobe

We found ourselves discussing pepper with affection because we did not wish to be thought odd by the boss. Nor did we wish to be unemployed. Not that he would have fired anybody for being pepper repellent — he never fired anyone for any reason But there was always the possibility. . . . Besides, we adored him. Invited to his house for a meal, we cravenly fortified ourselves with bland puddings and sodium preparations, knowing we were about to encounter the pepper mill — and lose. The heroic Don, we told ourselves, had his windmills. We had the pepper grinder.

At the company picnic none were surprised to see the boss arrive with the mill under his arm. He remembered it, all right, but had to get to bring the supply of fish that white-aproned bookkeepers were waiting to fry. It was a humid evening Lettuces wilted drearily around the dozen bowls of potato salad

There was more than absent fish to cause anxiety. The boss had invited a great many more people to break bread with us than even he had intended. Counting as best we could the growing throng, we estimated that by serving portions on the niggardly side, we could feed them all

A belated signal came — the the fish were turning golden brown. We hastily tried to bolster up the encircling lettuces — alas! Every bowl covered with ants. Tiny creatures by the thousands wended their way midst mayonnaise and celery There was only one thing to do. We did it.

As one of us stirred ants into the salad, another came along grinding pepper furiously over the top. Unruly from hunger by that time, the picknickers swarmed over the food until not a scrap — that is, speck — remained.

The boss beamed our way. We beamed back. It was the only round any of us had won over the blasted pepper grinder

Duckpin Bowling Profitable at Times

There are times when duckpin bowling can become a pretty profitable business. Take the case of Lucy Faltz, who bowls for the Monessen team in the Mon Valley League. She rolled a tremendous 287 game last weekend during a tournament in Uniontown. That feat earned her a $500 bond from the shirt company which manufactured the outfit she was wearing. Had Mrs. Faltz posted a perfect game, she would have won a $1000 bond! . . . Speaking of Mrs. Faltz, she and her husband are off to a good start with their 12 new lanes at the Jacktown Hotel. As a matter of fact, business is so good that they may add 12 more . . . Reportedly Billy Conn picks Johnny Eubanks to knock out Wilf Greaves when they meet February 25. Too much experience and punch for Greaves, thinks Conn.

The Harlem Globetrotters, who will appear at the MHS gym on February 6, will begin their annual cross-crountry tour with the College All-Americans at Madison Square Garden on March 31. They will play in 19 cities, finishing in Cincinnati on April 18 . . . John Novakovich, a Monessen High grad who coached basketball at Marion Junior High, is now a member of the faculty at Pleasant Hills. A sprawling new school is being planned for that district . . . Johnstown High grossed $21,200 in varsity football in 1956 but still wound up $657 in the red due to operating costs.

Gate Receipts Not as Big for CHS Game

Although more fans saw this year's Charleroi-Monessen basketball game, the gate receipts were not as big. The reason: no less than 1700 students turned out for last week's attraction. MHS officials went out of their way to take care of the youngsters first . . . En route home from the recent Monongahela-Monessen basketball game, the Monessen bus stopped off at a Monongahela funeral home. The coaching staff and other Monessen officials paid their last respects to Mrs. Charles Barbero, mother of Thomas Barbero, popular faculty-manaegr of athletics at the Wildcat school . . . All members of the 1956 Jeannette High football team—WPIAL champions—have recevied jackets from admiring hometown fans.

Both Bob Lazor and John Riser, Pitt's high scoring basketballers for the past three seasons, agree that their biggest college thrill came last year when they overcame a 17 point deficit to defeat West Virginia at Morgantown. The two towering Panthers also admit they had a lot of fun beating Duquesne in this year's Steel Bowl finals . . . Monessen's Midget Football League officials hope to reorganize for the 1957 season in a hurry. A meeting is planned for February 5, immediately after the Monessen-Bellmar game at the MHS gym. Anyone interested in the MFL program is urged to stick around for the session. Particularly parents of the boys are asked to sit in on the important meeting.

Hot Rod Much More than Court Jester

West Virginia's Hot Rod Hundley may be a court jester to most fans, but promoter Ned Irish at Madison Square Garden insists he's much more than that. Enthuses Irish: "I do not believe Hundley has received sufficient public acclaim for his superb talents as a playmaker, ball handler, defender and, basically, a team man above all else." . . . Bill George, Waynesburg's gift to the Chicago Bears, was married recently to Lucy Irene Trussler of Warren. In the off-season, Bill is employed as a salesman for a Chicago Steel Company . . . Ken Loeffler, who turned out great basketball teams at Geneva and LaSalle, is having troubles at Texas A. & M. His two year record shows 11 wins, 30 reverses. Quite a contrast to the 149-29 mark his LaSalle quints posted.

By OSCAR FRALEY

MIAMI, (UP) — Ted Williams, baseball's greatest hitter, today modestly identified Mickey Mantle as "the best batter of this era" and added that the New York Yankees again would be the team to beat for the American League pennant.

Williams, Lean, tanned and fit, will go to Boston on Friday to sign his sixth contract at an estimated $100,000 for another season as the big stick of the Boston Red Sox. And the four-time batting champion left no doubt but what he expected to give Mantle a run for the crown in the coming season.

"Mantle surely was entitled to the batting championship," said Williams of the Oklahoma kid who won the American League title with a .359 mark against his .345 percentage and a lifetime average of .348.

"Mickey is certainly the best hitter of this era and should wind up as one of the all-time greats," Ted added with conviction. "But I am sure that, the way I feel, I can play at least 100 games this season."

Hopes For 25 Homers

Ted also grinned that he "thought" he could hit "at least 330 and maybe bang about 25 home runs."

"Meanwhile," he added, "I'm going to try to beat that young fellow from the Yankees out of the batting championship—and the new rule which includes bases on balls in the necessary 477 times at bat doesn't figure to hurt me too much."

As one of the perennial leaders in walks, Williams figures to benefit greatly from the new ruling. With his walks being counted, he won't have to go for the bad pitches coming down the stretch to get the previously-needed 400 at-bats necessary to be eligible for the batting championship.

Williams, always a forthright talker, asserted that the American League pennant race was "between the Yankees and seven contenders."

"I hope I'm not misunderstood, again," he laughed. "I think our Red Sox have a terrific potential and you can bet we'll give it a run all the way. But who's going to deny that the Yankees are the team to beat?"

Respects Larsen's Pitching

Ted admitted, too, that he has for a long time had a terrific regard for Don Larsen, the Yankees' no-hit World Series hero.

"Way back when he was with the St. Louis Browns I said he was the most deceptive pitcher I had seen in a long time," Ted explained. "Well, I think the Dodgers will agree with me, anyhow."

Williams, who still carries a 10-inch pin in his shoulder as result of a shoulder separation operation several years back, said that it bothered him now only during cold weather.

"I feel great and I'm looking forward to this season—and several more," he reiterated. "I'd like to win that batting championship again—and maybe again."

Which, considering his admiration of Mantle, may be something of an enigma. But then, you have to remember that the immortal Ty Cobb named Williams as the greatest hitter of this era—and from the looks of tall Ted, his era isn't anywhere near ended.

The Romans some two thousand years ago discovered radiant heating. They circulated heated air beneath floors to give a warm surface.

CRO-AMS WIN 14th STRAIGHT GAME

Amoros Balks at '57 Pact

By MILTON RICHMAN

Don't look now but Sandy Amoros, the Dodgers' perpetual problem child, is plaguing 'em again.

Sandy, who got into all kinds of hot water with bobbles, boners and what-nots in Brooklyn's stretch run last September, only to emerge as a hero in the subsequent battle for the pennant, probably will come out all right again but right now he wants more money.

Amoros, who batted .260 in 114 games, is one of the three remaining unsigned Dodger players. The other two are infielder Chico Fernandez and pitcher Bob Darnell.

Came Through In Clutch

Playing in the Cuba winter league, now Sandy undoubtedly remembers how some of his Dodger teammates took him over the coals for costing them a crucial game against the Phillies in the last month of the 1956 campaign. Shortly afterward, however, he came through with a couple of key hits.

At any rate, Sandy is having his troubles getting base hits in Cuba at the moment (he's batting less than .250) and he's in no particular hurry to sign his contract and shoot it back to the Brooklyn front office.

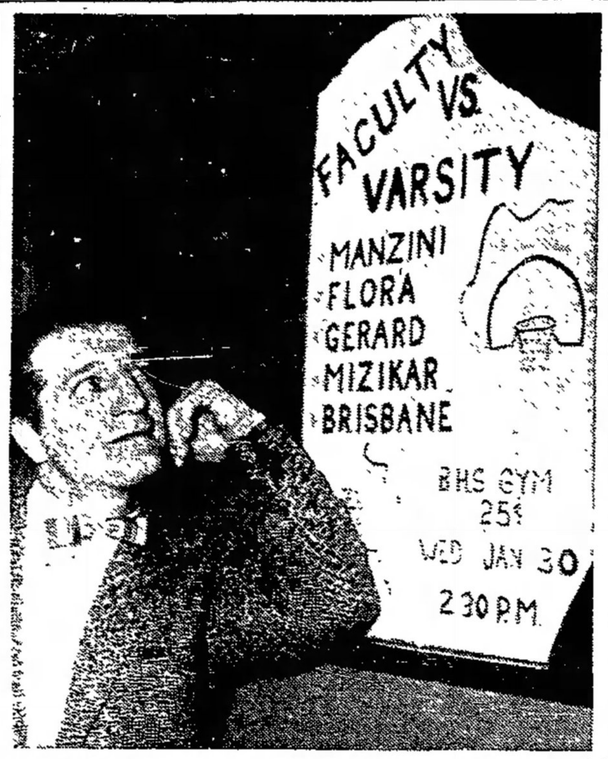
Brooklyn had better luck with four of its other players today, however, with the receipt of signed contracts from catcher Al (Rube) Walker and outfielders Gino Cimoli, Bert Hamric and Bob Wilson.

Giants Sign Two

Outfielder Dusty Rhodes and catcher Bill Sarni agreed to terms with the Giants, making a total of 25 who have signed with the club so far.

Ray Crone and Taylor Phillips, two pitchers who figure prominently in Milwaukee's plans, signed their contracts with the Braves. Phillips had a 6-5 record with the Braves after joining them in midseason from Wichita and Crone, used chiefly in relief, won 11 games and lost 10.

Relief pitcher Joe Dahlke and utility outfielder John "Bubba" Phillips signed with the White Sox, bringing their total to 17, and the Orioles made it 20 men in tow with the signing of catcher Joe Ginsberg and rookie outfielder Angelo Dagres.



BELLMAR BASKETBALL — That's football coach Bap Manzini looking over the bulletin board at Bellmar High School. He'll head a faculty basketball team against the Hurricane varsity tomorrow night. Manzini, a stationary guard, has devised a special power play which he plans to unveil during the game. He's been practucing the strategy in the Bellmar furnace room, which also serves as his athletic office.

North Carolina Takes Lead in Cage Poll

NEW YORK, (UP)North Carolina, Kansas and Kentucky remained 1-2-3 in the United Press College basketball ratings today as most of the teams prepared to resume full scale action after concentrating on mid-term examinations.

There were no newcomers in the top ten but after the first three teams only Louisville, which was sixth, retained the position it held last week. North Carolina, the only major college team with a perfect record (15-0), plays little Western Carolina Wednesday night in its only start this week.

Southern Methodist and UCLA, like North Carolina and Kansas, were idle last week and found it sometumes pays to relax.

Southern Methodist advanced from fifth to fourth and UCLA from seventh to fifth. The Mustangs advanced mainly because Iowa State, which had jumped from eighth to fourth last week folowing its upset victory over Kansas, lost to Missouri last Thursday night. The 35 leading coaches who rate the teams for the United Press dropped Iowa State to ninth after this defeat.

Illinois Moves Up

Illinois moved from eighth to seventh after equalling the Chicago Stadium scoring record during its 99-81 Saturday night victory over Notre Dame.

Ohio State, the surprise team in the Big Ten this season, advanced from tenth to eighth after defeating Wisconsin and Northwestern last week. Seattle slipped from ninth to tenth despite two victories over Gonzaga which boosted its record to 17-2.

North Carolina received 26 first-place votes, two more than last week, and a total of 339 points. Kansas drew seven first - place votes, one less than last week, and 295 points.

North Carolina increased its lead over Kansas slightly, raising its margin to 44 points after leading by 39 last week. Kansas (12-1) gets a chance to avenge its only loss when it entertains Iowa State Saturday night in its only start this week.

Kentucky Whips Vanderbilt

Kentucky (13-3) defeated Vanderbilt in its only game last week and received one first-place vote and 224 points. Southern Methodist (14-2) received 171 points and UCLA (13-1) 160 points.

Louisville (12-2) was close behind with the other first - place vote and 159 points after edging Dayton Saturday night, 57-56. Then came Illinois (10-2) with 141 points, Ohio State (11-3) with 92, Iowa State (11-3) with 79 and Seattle (18-2) with 60.

Points are distributed on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to tenth place.

Bradley remained 11th, heading the second 10 group. Canisius and California tied for 12th. Wake Forest and Vanderbilt followed in order, with St. Louis and Brigham Young tied for 16th. Then came Washington and Duke, with Syracuse and Oklahoma A&M deadlocked for 20th.

Sachs Captures Racing Award

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — Eddie Sachs, 29, Allentown, Pa., today was announced as the driver who "showed the most progress" on the United States Auto Club national championship racing circuit in 1956.

He was singled out for the trophy in a poll of sportswriters and sportscasters.

Fullmer Outslugs Greaves

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UP)—Gene Fullmer, welder, mink rancher and middleweight boxing champion, has ably demonstrated that he intends to keep his title for a long time.

The bull-necked Utah boxer gave that impression Monday night by lathering rugged Wilf Greaves of Pittsburgh, for an unanimous 10-round decision in a non-title and overweight slugfest in the Utah Fairgrounds Coliseum.

It was Fullmer's first bout since he dethroned Sugar Ray Robinson Jan. 2 at New York City. While Fullmer won the unanimous nod, he was unable to floor the courageous former Canadian Amateur champ who was making only his 16th appearance as a professional.

Fullmer used his usual bruising, boring-in stye to carry the fight most of the way. But the plaudits of the 3,000 fans went to the visitor whose red and bruised body was evidence of a thorough pounding at the hands of the champion.

Takes Command

The Utah favorite, weighing 160½, took command in the fourth round, but only after Greaves, weighing 162, opened a small cut over his left eye in the first round.

After the third, Greaves, who has a style similar to the champion, was content to slug it out at close range. While he was on the receiving end of the champ's devastating body attack, Greaves won raves from the fans for his fine retaliating.

Fullmer definitely showed he was not in top condition by demonstrating a lack of timing.

But Fullmer cut Graves' eye in the fourth and continued to pile up the points thereafter.

The champion had an excellent round in the sixth when he widened the cut over Graves' eye with jolting left jabs to the head and face.

Fullmer had another wide margin in the seventh when Greaves began to show the effects of the beating.

Wouldn't Break

Fullmer tried desperately for a knockout in the last three rounds, but the 21 - year - old Graves wouldn't break under the punishment.

Graves slipped to the canvas in the ninth and Fullmer slipped down in the 10th under a barrage of blows thrown by Wilf.

The balloting on the fight showed Referee Ken Shulsen scoring 9-1 for Fullmer, Judge Del Markham scoring 6-3-1 for Fullmer, and Judge Bob Yokum tallying 7-3 for the West Jordan, Utah, champ.

United Press had it 8-2 for the champion.

It was Fullmer's 39th professional win against three losses.

The 21-year-old New York University geology major punched his way to a majority decision over Chris Christensen of Denmark Monday night in a 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

"It was the first time I ever boxed 10 rounds and I felt like I could have gone 10 more," the young New Yorker said at the finish.

Roll Along Unbeaten In City League; Top Ozarks Easily, 66-45

There's no indication yet that the Cro-Ams are ready to be upset.

Last night, Coach Paul Kunsa's boys romped to a 66-45 win over a good Ozarks quint at the Junior High gym. It was the 14th straight success this season in City Basketball League play for the pace-setting Cro-Ams.

By winning, the leaders stayed two and a half games in front of the second place Viaduct dribblers, who also won, beating S-L, 62-50.

In another match, East End took Fuocos, 66-56.

Dominico Top Scorer

Sam Dominico led the Cro-Ams scorers with 22 points. Bob Petty chipped in with a dozen.

For the Ozarks, Ed Sanc and John Beck were high with 18 and 13 points respectively.

The Cro-Ams stepped off to a 12-8 lead in the first period and padded the margin in every other frame.

Viaduct had no trouble with S-L, taking an 18-6 lead in the first period. John Mesher led the way with 18 points. Mike Young chipped in with 16.

For the losers, Gene Hall was high with 17.

Short of Players

Viaduct Coach Bucky Lutes, short of players, started the game but gave way after four minutes of action when a sixth man arrived.

East End led all the way while scoring an impressive win over the Fuocos. Ed Burdock was the big scorer, tossing in 16 points. The Fuocos stayed in the game behind a 23 point scoring effort by Jim Bricker.

Plan Bigger Sportsman Show

Visitors to the second annual Pennsylvania Recreation and Sportsmen's Show, to be held March 25-30 at the Farm Show Building, Harrisburg, will enjoy "more of everything" this year, and a host of new features besides.

John W. G. Altland, executive vice president of the show, said today that success of last year's exposition, which attracted an estimated 250,000 persons, has encouraged the show management and exhibitors to offer an expanded schedule of displays, demonstrations, public participations and other attractions. The first annual Sportsmen's Show, held last March under Altland's direction, is credited with the biggest attendance for any paid event ever held in the Farm Show Building, one of America's great exhibition halls.

"This year's show," Altland announced, "will be even bigger and better in every possible way. Already we are assured of at least 25 percent more exhibitors There will be more merchandise displayed, more activities and more entertainment . . . more for the general public to see, to learn, to do and to enjoy."

Rostraver Host To West Newton

Leps Seek to Avenge Earlier Loss to Hornets in Exhibition

Rostraver High's fast-moving Leps will take time out from the heated Section 10 race to play host to West Newton tonight.

Earlier in the year, Rostraver dropped a 57-54 verdict at the Golden Hornets floor. So a revenge motive will be working in the Leps favor this evening.

Moreover Coach George Everett is most anxious for a victory. He was a former West Newton High standout and every grad likes to beat the Alma Mater.

Rostraver has won four of six league assignments to posses a third of a three-way tie for the top spot in the league standings.

Resume Activity

The Leps will resume league activity on Friday, appearing at Dunbar.

Just one other exhibition game involving valley teams is on tap tonight.

Washington will appear at Charleroi.

The Little Prexies have one of the WPIAL's finest players in 5-10 James (Beanie) Gordon. Despite that, the host Cougars are heavily favored to win.

Good Record

Coach Henry Pennline's boys have won 15 of 16 games this season, all of them by comfortable margins.

On the Junior High front, two games are scheduled this afternoon. Bentleyville will appear at Vernon and Carroll Twp. will go to Donora.

Michigan State Upsets Ohio State, 73 to 64

By UNITED PRESS

They've been calling Ohio State the "surprise team" of the Big Ten this season, but even the Buckeyes were willing today to hand that title over to Michigan State's slow-starting Spartans.

Ohio State's perfect league record was wrecked and its hold on first place in the conference badly shaken Monday night when Michigan State led most of the way to beat the Buckeyes, 73-64, at East Lansing, Mich.

By contrast to the woes of eighth-ranked Ohio State, Kentucky, the nation's No. 3 team, retained its share of first place in the Southeastern Conference Monday night by fighting its way to a 76-65 victory over upset - minded Georgia Tech at Atlanta.

Spartans Gain Revenge

Michigan State, which lost its first three Big Ten starts, made Ohio State its second straight upset victim and also gained revenge for a 70-51 whacking by the Buckeyes only two weeks ago. The defeat left Ohio State with a 6-1 league record and wiped out its vital edge in the lost column over runner-up Purdue (4-1), as well as Illinois and Michigan (each 3-1).

Kentucky boosted its Southeastern Conference record to 5-1 with its win Monday night, remaining tied for the top spot with Auburn, a 76-61 victor over Florida. Tulane, which had been in a three-way tie at 4-1, was idle.

In another important league game Monday night, Texas Western pushed its perfect record in the Border Conference to 5-0 by beating Arizona (Tempe) State, 77-66.

Iowa Tunes Up

Iowa State, ranked ninth nationally, tuned up for its re - match against Kansas on Saturday by beating Oklahoma, 67-56, while in other leading games Monday night:

Purdue took undisputed possession of second place in the Big Ten by beating Northwestern, 81-77; Graddy Wallace of South Carolina, a contender for the national scoring championship, boosted his per game average to 29.4 points by scoring 43 in a 90-77 victory over The Citadel; Seton Hall nipped St Francis of Brooklyn, 80-71; Alabama downed Georgia, 89-73; and Houston won a Missouri Valley Conference clash against Drake, 86-62.

Two games matching ranked teams feature tonight's schedule. In the Missouri Valley Conference, 16th - ranked St. Louis visits 20th-ranked Oklahoma A&M, and in the Atlantic Coast Conference 14th-ranked Duke plays host to 19th ranked Duke. In addition, sixth-ranked Louisville shoots for its 13th victory in 15 starts against Loyola of the South.

Aim at Mile Record in Track Meet at Boston

BOSTON (UP) —Light - footed Bobby Seaman of UCLA is the best bet to break Wes Santee's 4 03 8 Hunter Mile record in the Boston Athletic Assn. track meet slated for the Garden Saturday night.

Seaman 21-year-old senior currently between semesters, has twice turned in 4 01 4 clockings for the mile run and has been under the four-minute, eight - second mark five times in the past year.

The first West Coast miler in the meet since 1940, Seaman will have plenty of competition from Phil Coleman, 25-year - old Olympic steeplechaser; Burr Grimm, University of Maryland senior, and Johnny Kopil, former national scholastic mile champion from Villanova.

Double Olympic gold medalists Charley Jenkins of Villanova and former Fordham star Tom Courtney pair off in a natural in the 600. Jenkins' 1:09 9 meet record stands as the second sub-1 10 clocking ever recorded on an indoor track.

The 45-yard high hurdles will find Olympic winners Lee Calhoun and Milt Campbell in their second Boston duel of the year, Calhoun winning the Knights of Columbus hurdles by a whisker over the big Plainfield, N J., sailor.

Other leading performers include Pitt's Arnie Sowell, listed as a prohibitive favorite in the 1000; high-jumper Phil Reavis of Villanova and Don Bragg of Villanova and Bob Gutowski of Occidental in the pole vault.

Pittsburgh Steeler Star Now 'Working' for Lutheran Church

By JOHN CARROLL

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Dynamic Dale Dodrill of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who specializes in knocking runners down during the professional football season, is busy these days helping people back on their religious underpinnings.

The five times All-Pro middle guard is actively engaged as a layman missionary for the Lutheran Church, which this week is conducting its second annual nationwide drive to put religion back into every home.

"During the football season, it's pretty tough for a professional player to get to church services since most of our games are played on Sunday," Dodrill explained. "So when the season ends I try to do as much as I can to help out."

Dale Runs Interference

To help out, Dodrill is visiting homes in his suburban Baldwin Borough neighborhood "running interference" for those who have strayed from the church — regardless of faith — and who now want to return.

"All I do is talk to the folks and try to interest them in the church — sort of get them back to Christ," he said. "If they agree, I go with them to services and meetings. It's like running interference so they don't have to go back in the game cold

Marked Contrast

"After all, in most cases where a home is not in order you'll find there is no religion Without faith there is not much base for a stable happy homelife"

The former Colorado A&M athlete explained his feelings in quiet, sincere tones which presented a marked contrast to the hustle he displays on the gridiron, where he is rated by his coaches as "pound for pound, probably the best lineman in football."

Now a six-year veteran of the professional ranks and "shooting for seven," Dale admits without hesitation that he calls on prayer not only in everyday life but also before, during and after each game.

"Before we take the field for a game, our coach (Walt Kiesling) sets aside time so the players can offer up their own prayers. It may surprise you, but just about every Steeler makes the most of that time."

Does he have any special little prayer that he offers up before swinging into action against the best football talent in the world?

No Victory Prayers

"No. But what usually comes out is a prayer not to win or lose. I usually ask God to spare the players on both sides any serious injuries," Dodrill said.

"It's funny, but speaking about that pre-game prayer period no one ever says much about it out loud. But I remember once the coach forgot to allow us the time. The next week one of the fellows called the slip-up to his attention. Since then it has been a regular practice."

Dodrill's personal home life centers on his wife, Janette, and their son, Garrett Linn, who was a year old last Dec. 5. The boy was named after Dale's oldest brother who died in a Japanese prisoner of war camp during World War II.

"Everyone tells us the boy looks like he will grow up to be another football player," Dodrill concluded. "I may throw him a football once in a while and he'll have to take it from there."

Dukes Receive NIT 'Feeler'

PITTSBURGH (UP)— Duquesne University has received a feeler for the National Invitation Basketball Tournament to be held in March at Madison Square Garden.

"We have been asked whether we would be receptive to a bid should one be extended," a Duquesne spokesman said. "Our committee will have to decide."

The University of Pittsburgh also was reported to have received a feeler, but athletic officials declined to comment.

Duquesne, NIT champion in 1955, has played in the tournament the past four seasons. The Dukes have a 9-5 record this year.

Pitt has never played in the NIT.

10 Million Kids Short-changed

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UP) —At least 10 million American kids are being short-changed on their education because of the nation's schoolroom shortage.

That is the "conservative" estimate of education officials here. It is based on surveys by the U.S. Office of Education, the National Education Assn. and other agencies.

These surveys show that at least 840,000 children, mostly in the primary grades, are attending public schools in shifts this year. They are on half-day or other part-time class schedules.

Another 5.7 million elementary school children are trying to learn how to read, spell and multiply in classrooms that have 35 or more students in them. To say that 35 children of this age "overcrowd" a classroom and make teaching difficult is, in the opinion of educators, a massive understatement. Thirty is considered a maximum for effective teaching and many experts favor 20 or less.

Many Schools Dilapidated

Finally, upwards of 3.5 million children are attending schools which are so old as to be dilapidated and, in some cases, dangerous. Nearly a fifth of all U.S. schools are more than 50 years old; some in use are close to 100 years old. These schools lack the facilities for ordinary comfort, let alone the use of modern educational techniques.

This is the situation that President Eisenhower wants Congress to relieve with a four-year, $2.2 billion federal aid program.

The roots of the present schoolroom crisis go all the way back to the depression of the early 1930's. In those hard times, school districts had trouble raising enough tax money to pay teacher salaries, to say nothing of putting up fine new schools.

Restricted Use Of Materials

By the time the economy began to snap back, World War I was upon us, and the government restricted use of scarce materials for "non-essential" projects such as new schools.

By the end of the war, the nation had taken a 15-year holiday from school construction. The states started out in 1946-47 with a modest building program—9,000 classrooms in all—mainly aimed at replacing some of the older prewar buildings which were about to fall down.

Then the baby boom hit. Postwar birth rates soared, and although school districts sharply increased their construction outlays each year, the new buildings were never quite enough to take care of the tremendous influx of new students.

45 Arrested in Fayette Raids

BROWNSVILLE, Pa. (UP)—State police staged raids here and at nearby Masontown during the weekend and arrested 45 persons on morals and gambling charges.

Troopers struck at a home on Shady Avenue Saturday night and charged 31 persons with operating or visiting a disorderly house. Later the raiders hit a suspected gambling joint at Masontown and arrested 14 others.

Hoxsey Poster In Post Offices

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government mailed posters today to all post offices in the country warning against the use of the so-called Hoxsey cancer treatment.

The poster is the first of its kind ever issued by the Food and Drug Administration "against a worthless remedy," the agency said.

The poster said an investigation by the Food and Drug Administration found "not a single verified cure of internal cancer" from the Hoxsey treatment.

"Cancer can be cured only through surgery or radiation," it said, not through "the lure of a painless cure...as claimed by Hoxsey."

Westinghouse Bounces Back from Strike

By J. ROBERT SHUBERT

PITTSBURGH (UP) — The head of Westinghouse Electric Corp. said today the current robust financial condition of the company, despite a record-smashing five-month strike just 10 months ago, proves a firm can "stand up to a union, achieve what it wants in the way of a settlement, and can recover."

Gwilym A. Price, Westinghouse chairman and president, told a conference of financial writers that the company ended 1956 in the black, although it suffered a whopping loss of $44,668,000 in operating profit during the first three months when the company was still the target of a walkout by two big unions.

A strike of 56,000 members the International Union of Electrical Workers and the United Electrical Workers Unions choked off Westinghouse production from Oct. 19, 1955 to March 26, 1956. Key issues were the company's demand for a five-year agreement and the right to make time studies of the efficiency of non-incentive workers.

In the long negotiations and the final settlement, Price said, the company "fundamentally achieved" solution of labor problems which plagued it for years.

Rapid Recovery

Although the costs were heavy, Price said the recovery was rapid.

Westinghouse sales now are hitting a $2 billion-a-year clip and Price estimated the company would show net earnings of between $3.50 and $4 a share. Annual dividends will hold at $2 a share, Price predicted.

After settlement of the strike, the company netted after taxes 38 cents a share in the second quarter, 59 cents in the third, and 98 cents in the fourth. Earnings for the year were 82 cents a share.

As a result of a switch to the LIFO (last in, first out) system of inventory accounting, the fourth quarter earnings will show in the annual report as 26 cents and net for the year as 10 cents. The change also will result in a tax advantage and an increase of cash on hand of more than $13 million.

Speculation that the strike shutdown would cost the company customers proved groundless, according to Price. In the period from May to December last year, bookings and sales of Westinghouse hit a rate of between $182 million and $185 million a month.

"This is not a sick or ailing company," Price declared. "You don't do business like this in that sort of a situation."

Corrected Labor Problems

With the signing of five-year labor contracts last March, Westinghouse "substantially corrected" two labor problems, Price said. They were:

1. A differential in straight time hourly rates between Westinghouse and General Electric, No. 1 producer of the electrical manufacturing industry and Westinghouse's chief competitor. The differential at one time favored GE with 20 per cent lower labor costs.

2. Lack of employe discipline and the calling of frequent work stoppages over grievances, which should have been negotiated through regular contract channels.

Now, Price said, the Westinghouse-GE wage differential has been "reduced to manageable proportions" and worker "discipline has been restored." Since the end of the strike, Westinghouse has had only 17 per cent the number of work stoppages which occurred in the three prior years and none have occurred since Oct. 29, 1956.

Based on the Dec. 31, 1954 level, order backlogs on heavy electrical apparatus are up 86 per cent and on industrial products such as elevators and small motors 55 per cent.
